The Importance of Targeted Messages

A good field program is all about knocking on doors, sending out mail, and getting the message out to voters.

But campaigns have tight budgets and need to choose how and when to spend money.

The best campaigners use the latest tools to create targeted field programs matching their message with the interests and histories of voters.

VoterManager makes targeting easy. You can break down your voter list by any number of criteria:

- Demographics
- Party affiliation
- Voting history
- Precinct and Ward information

And once you've made contact your voters, you can track your communications history with them, noting the issues that matter to them and whether you've won their votes.

VoterManager allows every campaign to take advantage of the powerful tools of modern, targeted field programs.
